A wide-angle, high-angle photograph of a city at night, likely Los Angeles. The foreground shows residential houses with dark roofs and some lit windows. A major road in the lower-left corner has long, bright white light trails from cars. The middle ground is dominated by several large, modern office buildings with glowing windows. One building has a distinctive green, textured facade. The background shows a vast expanse of city lights stretching to the horizon under a deep blue night sky.
